

CALEB POWERS HAS AT LAST LEARNED WHO KILLED GOEBEL

Hager's Campaign Harangue Severely Condemned.

Ready for Another Hearing no Matter Who is Elected Next Governor.

Georgetown, Ky., September 1.—In a statement given out by Caleb Powers to-night he said: "Judge S. W. Hager, Democratic candidate for Governor, in his speech at Lexington yesterday said in substance and effect that if I were again convicted he would neither pardon me nor commute any sentence I might receive, but I should (to use his own language) suffer the full measure of the jury's verdict." He then asked Mr. Willson, the Republican candidate for Governor, if he could pardon me in the event he was elected. My case is now in the courts of the State for adjudication, where it ought to remain. Any candidate for the office of Governor who will go before the people of Kentucky seeking the votes of her citizens upon the issue of the life, liberty or death of one of her sons, when his case is still before her courts for settlement, declaring in advance of his trial that if elected Governor he will not in any event pardon him, though his innocence might be made to shine like the noonday sun even after conviction, and asking his opponent what he is going to do about it, is unworthy of the votes or support of Kentucky freemen.

"To appoint Judges for the purpose of convicting me, and then solemnly declaring that I shall not be pardoned if convicted, is a novel political game worthy of the serious thought of every Kentuckian. It does the State, as well as myself, a great injury and injustice for my case. My guilt or innocence to be persistently paraded in every campaign for political purposes, as has been done for years, thereby engendering hatreds and animosities among the people, and so dividing them up on the question of my guilt or innocence as to make a fair trial for me impossible.

"Unlike the treatment accorded Jim Hargis, I was denied bail, and have been forced to lie in jail for over seven years waiting for reason to ascend the throne and justice to resume her sway I have in a way, single handed and alone, been fighting the battles of every man in Kentucky, the fight for fair trials and the good name of the State, as well as the vindication of my own good name.

"The same people who prosecuted me in the past will prosecute me in the future, and doubtless with the same methods, as far as lies in their power. I am not looking to them for relief in the trial of my case, but to the honesty and integrity of the mass of the great common people, from some of whom my next jury will doubtless come. "People have changed in their attitude toward me, and many more than formerly believe in my entire innocence. Others doubt my guilt, while others say I have suffered enough, even if guilty.

"I know better than anybody else can know that I am not guilty. For guilt to be fastened on me by the courts or exploited by politicians and office seekers when I am not guilty, hurts the good name of the State at home, and gives us a bad reputation abroad, to say nothing of the rank injustice done an innocent and long suffering citizen.

AFTER CORRUPTION FUND.
"And although I realize that a horde of perjured witnesses will again swarm around that $100,000 corruption fund, and will again try to swear my liberty away, in the hope of being able to still continue theirs; that the prosecution will again, if possible, pack and fix my next jury for conviction; that office seekers will then, as now, try to ride into office by professing a great love for Senator Goebel, which many of them never felt, and by expressing great and deep regret at his death, when, had it not been for his death, they would not have been heard of politically; that hatred will continue to be engendered against me by playing upon the Goebel murder for selfish purposes, at the same time I have decided, if my trial does not take place before that date, to demand a trial of my case following the inauguration of the next Governor of Kenucky, whoever may be elected to that office.

"After seven years of continuous investigation, handicapped as I have been by being in jail, I have at last discovered, and am now able to point out the man who killed Senator Goebel, and it is not Jim Howard, either. The person claimed by the prosecution to have fired the fatal shot, Jim Howard, is an innocent man."

Postmasters' League to Meet.

The League of 4th Class Postmasters of Kentucky will hold their State meeting in Louisville on September 17th and 18th, in the North Court Room of Custom House at 9 a. m. sharp.

The department has granted five days leave of absence to 4th class Postmasters and has also assigned Inspector Samuel A. Susong to attend this meeting to instruct the Postmasters in the discharge of their complicated duties.

The second day of this meeting will be a union meeting of the first, second, third and fourth class Postmasters. An interesting program has been arranged.

PART OF CUR- FEW LAW VOID

In Conflict With Constitu- tional Bill of Rights.

Boys of Beaver Dam May Make Evening Calls on Sweetheart Without Being Sent.

For sometime past there has been in force in Beaver Dam a very stringent curfew law. While its enforcement, evidently lessened the opportunities of boys to engage in mischief and threw about those of tender years that restraint that is in many instances very useful it worked a hardship on the older boys, young men as they are considered. For it provided that all boys under 20 years of age must refrain from being on or along the streets or alleys after 7 o'clock except when going to or returning from church or public entertainments or sent by parent or guardian. The boys offered objections to this provision and one that was well taken by the court was that it prevented them from calling on their sweethearts of evenings unless accompanied with or sent by parent or guardian. The objections reached a climax when young Crowe Pate, who is nearly twenty, ventured out, was apprehended and fined. He paid a portion of his fine but when the time came to pay the remainder his father for him filed a suit in the Ohio Circuit Court asking an injunction against the officials of Beaver Dam enjoining them from collecting same. As grounds for an injunction he alleged that the following portion of the ordinance was unconstitutional:

"That it shall be unlawful for any minor, under the age of twenty years, to play or loiter on any of the streets or alleys or other public places in the town of Beaver Dam, Ky., between the hours of seven o'clock p. m., at the ringing of the court house bell, and six o'clock a. m.; or to be on or pass along the streets or alleys, or other public places within the limit of said town, between the hours aforesaid; provided, however, that nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to prevent minors, under the age of twenty (20) years, from going to or from church or public entertainments; or upon errands, when sent by their parents, guardians or persons in charge of them, but any minor when so doing shall not stop or loiter in the streets or alleys of other public places of said town."

The matter was heard at the last term of Circuit Court and submitted to the court for judgment. Judge Birk head yesterday morning handed down an opinion declaring that part of the ordinance which provides that it shall be unlawful for any minor under the age of 20 years to be on or pass along the streets or alleys or other places within the limits of said town after seven o'clock p. m., unconstitutional and void. So the boys may be on or pass along the streets for any purpose, even may go to see their girls, just so they do not loiter or play on the way.

WILLSON FLAYS HAGER ALIVE.

Says He Talks More Like a Ward Heeler Than Gov.

Declares he Would Refuse to Par- don Any Man Justly Convict- ed of Goebel Killing.

In response to candidate Hager's inquiry as to what he would do if elected Governor, about pardoning Caleb Powers and others accused of the murder of Goebel Mr. Willson in his Williamsburg speech Monday said:

"I had anticipated that some irresponsible person not expected to know the proprieties of the case, or some mere political heeler would ask me in some public meeting what I would do about the Powers case, but I had not expected that the nominee for Governor of Kentucky, who is to ask the support of the people of Kentucky for himself, as a man trained by executive duties to understand the proprieties in such matters, to ask such a question, much less had I supposed it possible that he would seek in 1907 to revive the passions and excitement of the tragedy which robbed the Republicans of the State Government, seek neighbor against neighbor, and seek to substitute old hates, passion and prejudices of which the whole state has become inexpressibly wearied, by this passage in his address which he read from manuscript carefully prepared by all the force of all the Democratic politicians and press bureau writers through all the days from the 19th of August, when I made my informal address at Maysville until now."

"Mr. Hager knows, that the people of Kentucky known from my life and my unflinching support of law and order, that I would refuse an application for the pardon of any man justly convicted of the assassination, and that any upright man would do the same, and his talk was more worthy of a cheap politician or a ward heeler than a man aspiring to the noble office of Governor of Kentucky, and his declaring his intention in advance of a trial or record to refuse such pardon is conclusive proof out of his own mouth that he is unfit and unworthy to be Governor of Kentucky or any other honorable Commonwealth.

"I would lose my good right hand before I would knowingly sign the pardon of any man guilty of crime. I have no party feeling in this matter, and submit to you that there is no page in the history of my life that would justify any such thought or intimation.

"If Mr. Powers should be convicted by a fair jury in a fair trial, and the record should come to me with an application for pardon, I should consider it without thought of party or person with just as sacred feeling of responsibility as any judge, and should decide it according to law, the facts and the right, without fear or favor, looking only to my duty, my honor and the convictions of all good men and until the record be presented to me I could not answer if I wished what my decision shall be, but it will be calm, just and under the sacred responsibilities of my oath of office and by the high official duty under the Constitution and the law.

"Mr. Hager may disregard the proprieties and I may say the decency of so serious a matter as announcing his intention on the life and death or liberty of a citizen yet to be lawfully tried on a criminal charge before the record is made or the case presented according to law, but I cannot so forget the right to the respect and confidence of the people of Kentucky, and I shall not, and I leave him to take the position of a judge announcing his intended decision in advance of trial and without the record, according to his party necessities and political feelings.

While I cannot honorably or justly seek votes much less the confidence of the people by any partisan declaration nor by any indication that I shall do on the one side what he will do on the other I know I shall do my duty as a God-fearing, law-loving citizen and Chief Magistrate, and in that spirit I ask the trust and confidence of the people of Kentucky without regard to party, relying without anxiety upon the just judgment of all the people of a great Commonwealth in judgment to be given not in political meetings or under partisan appeals to passion and prejudice, but the calm, honest, thoughtful judgment of all good men in the peace and quiet of their homes with their families about them at their own hearthstones, where all judgment on serious public questions should be made.

Beautiful Home Wedding.

Miss Fannie B. Cox and Mr. Albert V. Goodin were married at the home of the bride Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Lewis in a most beautiful and impressive manner, the happy couple entering the parlor while Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Hattie Barnett. After congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Goodin left for Charleston, Mo., the home of the groom, midst a shower of rice and old slippers, carrying with them the good wishes of many friends.

Mr. Goodin is a wealthy and prominent business man, who stands high in his community, while Miss Cox has long been one of the belles of Hartford. The wedding was very quiet, only a few friends being invited. Those who accompanied the groom from Charleston were his mother, Mrs. Sue Goodin, Mrs. Dr. Mann, Mrs. John Deal, Miss Myrtle Goodin, sisters and Mr. J. L. Byrd. Those present from a distance were Mrs. Dr. J. C. Hoover, Owensboro, Mrs. C. E. Rogers, Elkton, Ky.; Mrs. J. H. White, Charleston, Mo.; Mrs. R. T. Collins, Louisville. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents.

FISCAL COURT RESCINDS BOND PROPOSITION

Action Taken When it Was Evi- dent That People Did Not Favor it.

The Ohio County Fiscal Court met in special session at the Court House Wednesday upon call issued by Judge W. B. Taylor for the purpose of considering the propriety of withdrawing or rescinding the order entered at the special April term of the Court providing that the question of issuing bonds to the amount of $100,000 for building and repairing roads be submitted to a vote of the people at the coming November election. The matter was thoroughly discussed by the members of the court, several of whom stated that in their opinion the proposition would not receive one vote in ten. Some were of the opinion that the order submitting the question was void for reason that the purpose for which funds, in the event the result of the vote was in favor of the issue of the bonds, were to be used was not definitely enough stated. The Court seemed to be of the unanimous opinion that inasmuch as so few people seemed to be contemplating voting in favor of the proposition it was best to rescind the order providing for a vote.

In this connection it might be proper to state that the primary reason why the Magistrates voted last April for the order providing for the submission of the bond issue question was that so many people were clamoring for good roads and there not being sufficient available revenue to do anything scarcely to them. Since that time, however, the roads have dried out and are fairly good and demand for road building has greatly decreased. The order rescinding the order is as follows:

It was moved by Esp. Edge that the court rescind the motion or order entered at the special April 1907 term of this court, wherein the question of submitting the proposition of bond issue to be voted on at the regular November election 1907, in amount of $100,000 for the purpose of improving and building public roads and bridges in Ohio county. After thorough discussion the motion carried. Thereupon Esp. Miller moved that the court enter an order rescinding and setting aside the order submitting to the voters of Ohio county at the regular November 1907 election as to whether or not the said voters would authorize the issue of Bonds to the amount of $100,000 for the purpose of building, repairing and improving the public highways of said county and that said order be declared void and held for naught. All of the justices voted in favor of the motion and it was so ordered.

POPULARITY CON- TEST CLOSES.

Misses Cora Thomasson and Ethelyn Jones Winners.

Exciting Finish Among Candi- dates and Supporters--All Deserve Recognition.

Last Saturday evening at 5 o'clock our Jamestown Exposition contest came to a close. Up to the last moment our offices were crowded with supporters of the various candidates who were turning in the votes which they hoped would bring their favorites out ahead. Promptly at 5 o'clock the voting closed and the count made, with Messrs. John P. Foster, C. M. Crowe and Dan Altmire assisting on behalf of the candidates. One hundred and twenty-four thousand, six hundred and fifty five votes were cast in the entire contest, divided as follows:

Miss Ethelyn Jones.....37,055
Miss Bertha Pirtle.....29,710
Miss Cora Thomasson.....21,755
Miss Mertie Willford.....14,565
Miss Mary B. Williams.....17,855
Scattering vote.....3,520

It will be seen that Miss Jones on South side and Miss Thomasson on North side are the winners. Miss Bertha Pirtle was a close second to Miss Jones and Miss Willford made a good race on the North side. All the candidates worked faithfully and the Republican management is only sorry that any of them had to go down in defeat.

We are sorry that we cannot take all the girls to Jamestown. They deserve our highest praise for the substantial aid they have given this year. Fully 300 new subscribers have been added to our list, besides several hundred renewals. The contest was conducted throughout and brought to a close with absolute fairness on our part, with a care to have the friendly rivalry result in no unpleasant recollection. While we have inaugurated these contests principally to benefit our paper, we have also in mind the pleasure and benefit we might bring to some Ohio county boys and girls by these trips.

As Miss Pirtle received the next highest number of votes in the contest, and more than the winner on the North side by almost eight thousand, we have decided to invite her to go on the Jamestown trip as our guest and at our expense. The other ladies, who received more than 10,000 votes, have been invited to take a trip to the Mammoth Cave, at our expense.

The trip to Jamestown will be made about September 24, and the one to the cave some time in October. We are thankful to all our candidates and to those who assisted in the count last Saturday, or rendered aid to the various contestants during the campaign, and announce our intention to try to arrange something still better next year.

Popular Couple Wed.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. L. H. Condit and Miss Hallie King were united in marriage. Rev. L. W. Tichenor officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. King, of the Pleasant Hill neighborhood and is a most handsome and popular young lady. She formerly taught in the public schools of the county and was one of the foremost instructors of the county during the time.

Mr. Condit is one of the best known and popular young men of the county. He is at present engaged in the revenue business.

Immediately after the matrimonial rites were performed Mr. and Mrs. Condit left for the home of the groom's father, Mr. W. F. Condit, Matanzas, where they will visit until about the 16th inst., when Mr. Condit resumes his position in the revenue service at Henderson.

The Republican joins the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Condit in extending hearty good wishes.

Revival Growing in Interest.

The series of meetings which is being conducted at the Court House for the Christian church, by Elder Wright and Elder Brown is drawing good audiences at every service. Elder Brown is preaching some plain practical sermons, which cannot fail to benefit those who hear them. He is a polished speaker, and his extensive travels enable him to embellish his sermons with many interesting illustrations. His afternoon free lectures are largely attended and are of special interest to the College students as he takes up, and explains points of interest in the various countries he has visited. Saturday night he will lecture on "Optimism and Pessimism. Everyone will be expected to bring a silver offering to be given at the door, the amount given to be left to each individual.

Elder Wright has returned and will remain throughout the meeting, which will continue about ten days.

Prof. Hoggatt's solos are worth going miles to hear. He is assisted by a choir made up of some of the best voices in town.

Returns Thanks.

Editors Republican:—To the subscribers of the Hartford Republican, I desire to return my sincere thanks to those who cast their votes for me for the free trip to Jamestown Exposition, especially to the people of Hartford, who were so kind and assisted me so much. At the same time I do not rejoice over those who were unsuccessful, and hold no malice toward those who gave their votes and assistance to another. Resp'y.,

AS FAR BACK AS A CENTURY AGO.

Even in Those Days They Had Bitter Nature Faker Controversies.

It must not be supposed that "nature-faker" controversies are solely a product of our present-day culture. While President Roosevelt is criticizing Dr. Long for his statement that wolves kill caribou by biting through their chests to their heart, and "Oom Jahn" Burroughs and other naturalists are attacking Dr. Long and his school of attributing reason to animals, it is interesting to recall that the present controversy had a parallel in the life of a great English naturalist who flourished in the first half of the last century. This was Charles Waterton, a wealthy gentleman of Wakefield, England. That his name is less known than that of Gilbert White, of Selborne, is due chiefly to the fact that he had not the famous parson's gift of style; but his observations covered a far wider field than his predecessor's, for he was an indefatigable globe-trotter. His stories of his foreign experiences with animals were fiercely attacked by his stay-at-home contemporaries, and he in turn had little patience with those whose observation—or lack of it—caused them to differ with him on points of natural history.

One of his bitterest controversies was with our own Audubon, whom he called "a quack," "an arrogant fool," and "an ornithological impostor," because, in one of his plates showing a rattlesnake attacking a mocking bird's nest, the American ornithologist made the snake's eyes start from their sockets, and pictured its poison fangs turned the wrong way. Cuvier, he said, "although a most honest gentleman, knew no more about the real habits of most birds than I did about his grandmother." Criticizing another writer's "Cleanings in Natural History," he said: He ought to be whipped. Nothing can be more false or absurd than his statement that horses in hot countries bled each other. Yet he himself recorded an experience in South America that is sufficiently hard to believe. It is that he seized a ten-foot boa constrictor by the throat and carried it home with the rest of the snake coiled around his body. On another occasion, having hooked an alligator more than ten feet in length, he jumped astride of it when his Indian guides pulled it out of the water, and twisted its fore legs over its back.

He strove to educate the popular mind to the appreciation of the usefulness of owls and most hawks—a knowledge which has not made much progress, even up to the present time, when it is necessary for our Department of Agriculture to issue pamphlets warning farmers not to kill these birds, because they feed chiefly upon mice and other vermin, instead of continually preying upon birds and poultry, as they are popularly reputed to do. In furtherance of his project of protecting these birds he established asylums for them in the park of his estate, and created there a preserve for all harmless birds making it a rule that a gun must never be fired on his lands.—Leslie's Weekly.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

A man is awfully ashamed of his boy for fighting—if he gets licked. The less a woman has to say the longer she can make it into a letter.

A woman would like to get telegrams if she knew what was in them before she had opened them.

The reason a man can work so hard around his own house is nobody is paying him for something he ought to earn.

People can be good if they don't know what fun is.

A girl will never let you kiss her except when she says she won't.

One reason a girl doesn't like automobile riding so much is a man can't run it all the time with one arm.

A woman waits for a man to propose but after they are married she waits a good deal more for him to come home at nights.

What's the use of having family arguments when you can get almost as much noise by going to Niagara Falls without working so hard?

Lots of people are sane except when they are engaged.

It takes a girl to pretend she doesn't know how to pretend.

Automobiles save a lot of money for a man by not owning them.

A woman calls it being frank when she will admit what she has to.

A man gets used to being married the way he does to an old pair of shoes.—New York Press.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR AT CHURCHILL DOWNS.

Historic Race Course at Louisville
Will be Location of 1907
Exhibition.

After three weeks of negotiations with the owners of Douglas Park at Louisville, resulting in a failure to induce them to lease the grounds for the 1907 Kentucky State Fair, pending the clearing of the title to the property, and adjustment of other matters in connection with the purchase of the tract and buildings as a permanent location, the Kentucky State Board of Agriculture has been given the use of the Churchill Downs at Louisville for the holding this year's exhibition during the week of Sept. 16. The Kentucky State Fair will therefore be held on the dates mentioned, at historic Churchill Downs, where the Fair last year was held.

Messrs. Charles F. Granger and Matt J. Winn, representing the Churchill Downs interests have agreed to the use of these grounds and a committee representing the State Board has extended to them a vote of cordial thanks for their liberality in the matter, inasmuch as the grounds are tendered to the State Fair upon terms agreeable to the State Fair management.

Churchill Downs, while a typical race course, is considered to be the best equipped State Fair grounds in the South, with the possible exception of the Texas Fair grounds. There will be an abundance of stall room for all kinds of live stock, there is a big stand and there are buildings suitable for the departments which must be shown indoors.

The entry list in the different exhibit departments is the greatest in the history of the Kentucky State Fair, at this time, three weeks prior to the exhibition.

The State Fair management is spending over $7,000 in exploitation and expects record breaking attendance daily. Some of the greatest amusement enterprises in the country have been contracted with for State Fair week.

In Memoriam.

Resolved, That as students of the Western Kentucky State Normal and as members of the Ohio County Delegation, interested in the educational progress now on in our State, we deeply deplore the loss our great cause has sustained in the death of our most favored teacher and gifted educator, Miss Sarah E. Scott, head of the department of Method, Observation and Practice in the aforesaid institution. The students of the Normal have lost a loving and efficient teacher; education has lost a brave champion; humanity has lost a strong sympathizer and true friend. Where Are The Old Men.

It is proper to speak of a man under thirty as "old man" in a jocular way, but after that it becomes dangerous. As for old ladies, thirty years ago it was common in society and in print to speak of an old man or old lady without meaning any disrespect or giving the least offense. Now it is positively dangerous; in fact, it isn't done. Why this change?

Partly because the physical and mental condition of the average person is better than formerly, but principally because people have decided not to grow old. That settles it. We are largely taken at our own valuation, and are not now disposed to make it a low one.

Fifty years ago a man of 35 was considered an old man. Many persons can remember their fathers at 30, or grandfathers who at 50 seemed older than any living person now.

It is considered proper for a man of family to settle down quietly, to eschew the vanities of life and in a sober, orderly manner to work and live as if he were 70. In these days it isn't done, partly because there is too much zest in active life and partly because for a man to act as if he were old is too often simply shelving himself. The young blood is wanted these days, and many men of 60 are to all intents and purposes still young. They keep at the game with their former eagerness.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

GOOD WORK AT THE FARMERS INSTITUTE.

Plowing and Attention to Soil,
Theme for Splendid Discussion.

At the farmers' Institute last Thursday and Friday addresses were made by three gentlemen employed in the fore noon plows and plowing were department of agriculture. In the discussed. J. Al Dobin, of Ohio, said he had learned from experience that to do good work the plow must be adapted to the soil, then that much was to be gained by properly adjusting the plow. He strongly advocated the use of the jointer, said the depth of plowing should be governed by the depth of soil; found 5 to 6 in, deep enough on his farm. Said fall plowing was beneficial on soil not compacted by winter rains nor subject to washing.

H. P. Miller, of Ohio, had found the disc plow highly satisfactory on loose or stubble ground also for fall plowing when ground becomes too dry for the mold board plow to work. It pulverizes the ground for more than the latter and is lighter draft.

At the afternoon session Mr. Dobie discussed the purposes and methods of cultivation, saying that the killing of weeds though an important object was only one of many. Weeds are most easily killed before they appear above ground and can at that time be most readily killed by use of harrow. Advocated harrow corn once or twice before it comes up. Cultivate deep at first to assist circulation of air through soil then as the plant root, spread so as to occupy the ground cultivate shallow with the purpose of making an earth mulch to hold the soil moisture.

Mr. Miller spoke of some factors in soil fertility, urging that land lost more fertility through lying bare than from growing crops hence advocated a close rotation of crops in which one was sown own rotation is corn, rye and clover. The use of a leguminous as clover or peas is an important factor. Another factor not yet appreciated is stable manure. Urge that animal be kept in stables where both solid and liquid excrement can be saved and that the manure be left under shelter until distributed upon the field. Stable manure should be supplemented by phosphorus which is most cheaply done by the use of floats or the untreated Tennessee rock in the stables. Mr. M. F. Johnson, the director of the force advocated the planting of more fruits for the family both tree and small fruits and pointed out the great value and luxury of the same. Said greatest care was necessary in starting the fruit plantation to get suitable varieties. Always buy of a nurseryman near home and from one known to be honest. Varieties adopted to conditions a hundred miles either north or south of you are not likely to be adopted to yours.

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

GOLD OFFERED FOR TAYLOR.

Tendered Ex-Gov. Durbin if he Would Surrender Him.

Details of Alleged Scheme Have Been Discussed by Men From Kentucky.

Indianapolis Ind., Aug. 30.—The morning says: "It came to me yesterday that when Winfield T. Durbin was Governor of Indiana, national efforts were made to influence him to surrender William S. Taylor to the authorities of Kentucky. The facts concerning these advances, which have remained hidden for more than six years, are particularly interesting at this time, when ex-Gov. Taylor's offer to return to Kentucky on certain conditions is still fresh in the public mind.

It was one of ex-Gov. Taylor's state conditions that the balance of the to-ninety,000 'corruption fund' should be returned to the State treasury, so in his mind it could not be used to prosecute the ends of justice against his assistants. When efforts were being made to 'reach' Gov. Durbin, it was reported that there was $93,000, of which a fund still remaining. He was slow to catch the hint that if he delivered Taylor to the Kentucky authorities a large slice of it would be his.

Following, or at least believing, for more than six years that he could not receive a very substantial bribe, he had chosen to accept it, Col. Durbin has kept his own counsel, and not until yesterday would he admit that he had been 'approached.'

BOOKWALTER REFUSES.

"Something over a year ago Mayor Bookwalter, who was at the head of the city government when efforts were being made to kidnap Taylor, started the country by giving an interview to the Star in which he charged that he was called to Cincinnati, where Tom Campbell, attorney for the Goebelites, offered him a large sum of money if he would allow agents of the Kentucky authorities to come to Indianapolis and kidnap Taylor from his home. The money was to be paid Bookwalter on condition that there would be no police interference with the invaders. Bookwalter advised Campbell not to send any persons to Indianapolis to capture Taylor unless they made arrangements with their undertakers in advance.

"It is now learned that the emissaries of the Kentucky faction that thirsted for Taylor's blood showed their nerve in almost as astonishing a fashion by attempting to reach the Governor himself. In the early part of the year 1901, when the State Legislature was in session, Durbin received an invitation to go to Cincinnati for a private conference in reference to the Goebel matter. Unlike Mr. Bookwalter, he declined to go.

EFFORTS NOT QUELLED.

"This did not end the negotiations. Work with the conspirators, if such they might be termed, as a man who was connected with a book concern at Cincinnati, Col. Durbin does not remember his name. This man formerly lived at Brookville, Ind., where he became acquainted with Judge J. F. McClure, also a resident of Brookville and is one of Col. Durbin's best friends.

"Judge McClure was appointed to help in getting an audience with Gov. Durbin. The conspirators wanted a private conference, they said. Judge McClure rendered no assistance to the Goebelites, but he did think it quite proper to inform Gov. Durbin of their strange request.

"Gov. Durbin sent back word that he could be seen only at one place and that was in the Government office at the State Capitol at Indianapolis.

"Later Senator C. C. Binkley, of Richmond, Ind., who was known to be a friend of the Governor, received a call to go to Cincinnati, and he went. It seems that the Goebel avengers were conducting their principal operations from Cincinnati in those days. Senator Binkley attended a meeting there and the propositions that were bandied about at that meeting so astonished him that he lost no time in telling Gov. Durbin about it upon his return to Indiana.

BINKLEY TELLS DURBIN.

"He told the Governor that the meeting was at one of the Cincinnati hotels, and he gave the names of some of those who, he said, were present. Plans for bribing Gov. Durbin were openly discussed at the meeting, he said, and it was reported that out of the original fund of $100,000 there was still available $93,000. Senator Binkley did not come as an emissary to Gov. Durbin. On the contrary, he came as a surprised and disgusted man would and with a poorer opinion of 'Kentucky justice' than he ever had before.

"Col. Durbin was seen at the Clay-

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of 'liver trouble' by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the deflection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in the back, gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, or any of the 'risings' in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly and surely than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The 'Discovery' is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

pool Hotel yesterday and asked if the facts as given above tallied with his recollection.

"Yes," said he. "The story as you have it is substantially correct."

WARNS REFUGEE TAYLOR.

"Senator Binkley died a few years ago. Before his death he told one other person the full particulars of the meeting at Cincinnati and the other revelations that had come to him regarding the plans to get Taylor back to Kentucky by fair means or foul. That other person was Taylor himself.

"When seen yesterday ex-Gov. Taylor declined to discuss Col. Durbin's story. He admitted that Senator Binkley told him many astounding facts, but said that, for the reason that Senator Binkley is dead, he did not consider it proper to repeat what the Senator had told him.

"Col. Durbin said that he has read certainly the propositions made by Taylor outlining the terms upon which he will return to Kentucky.

"Taylor is right," said he. "His proposition is entirely fair. He is entitled to have the fullest assurance that he will be accorded exact justice and nothing more."

"He asks for a non-partisan jury of six Democrats and six Republicans and a judge who will vote fair. He is entitled to both. He also asks that the balance of the $100,000 corruption fund be turned back into the treasury. Not only for the sake of a fair trial in the Taylor case, but for the good name of Kentucky that fund ought to be wiped out of existence."

A Japanese Custom.

When a Japanese girl is about to marry, her mother impresses upon her various rules of conduct to be followed during her wedding life, says Harper's "Weekly." Some of these are:

"Be always amiable to your mother-in-law and father-in-law.

"Don't talk too much.

"Get up early, go to bed late, and never sleep in the afternoon.

"Until you are fifty never mix in crowds.

"Do not consult fortune tellers.

"Do not wear light clothes.

"Be humble and polite.

"Never allow yourself to be jealous.

"Even if your husband is in the wrong never get angry.

"Never speak evil of your neighbors.

"Strict obedience to a husband is a wife's noblest virtue."

A NEW DEAL IN FARM MARKETING.

Farmers Are Now Selling Their Grain Direct to Consumers.

On the 14th of August farmers' selling agencies were established in Kansas City and St. Louis for the first time in the history of American agriculture. Farmers are now going into the large market centers to sell the products direct to consumers in whole lots. These new agencies are also the only agencies in the country, at the present time whose managers are directly accountable to the producers for the manner in which their products are handled. Every man employed by these agencies works on the salary basis, hence the inducement to make as much out of the product as possible, while it is being handled from the producer to the consumer, as is the case with the other class of selling agencies, is removed. There is no reason why these new agencies should at any time make any effort to pull millers and other buyers of grain next to as many bargains as possible of grain shipped to them or to help "make it miserable" for shipmen's of grain coming from individual or farmers' elevators.

The missing link which the farmers have looked for so long has now been inserted in their marketing machine. The trouble which farmers' elevators and independent shippers have experienced in the past for want of the right kind of selling agencies in the principal markets has now been removed. It is now up to the farmers independent shippers, and farmers' elevators to prove by their patronage, whether or not they are willing to build up agencies of their own. It is expected that the old agencies now established, will do everything in their power to induce farmers to strive out their own agencies. They will no doubt give better deals on grain shipped to them than they have ever done before hoping that by so doing they will be able to create such a feeling of satisfaction among the farmers and independent shippers that they will quit making all the noise and disturbance which they have been doing lately. It would pay big for them to have done administered to farmers and independent shippers so as to make them go to sleep a year or two. Having learned a few things from experience in the past year or two, this would enable them to entrench themselves more strongly than ever before.

Millers will also invite the establishment of these agencies because it will make it possible for them to obtain wheat as it comes from the farm unplugged and unadulterated.

These agencies are being established by the Grain Growers' Department of the American Society of Equity, whose National headquarters are maintained at Indianapolis, Ind.

Courtship in Scripture.

If this story had come from Topeka, we should have been more readily inclined to believe it, because Topeka's familiarity with all things Biblical is proverbial. But it is a good story, even if it isn't its first appearance on earth and it is told thus by the Jewell County Monitor: A young gentleman at church conceived a most sudden and violent passion for a young lady, in the next pew and felt desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot, but the place not suiting a formal declaration, the exigency suggested the following plan: He politely handed his fair neighbor a Bible, open, with a pin stuck in the following text, second epistle of John, verse 5: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new store." Brides in Honeymoon.

What is believed to be the most peculiar honeymoons ever spent by brides are those of Mrs. James Ryan and Mrs. Thomas F. Noonan, brides of the past week, who a few hours after the double wedding at their homes in North Memphis left the city on the Mississippi steamer for Louisville, while their husbands returned to work.

"Mr. Ryan couldn't afford to spare the time from his work," explained Mrs. Ryan, a comely little woman, "and we thought we would enjoy ourselves by taking the honeymoon alone. Mr. Noonan wanted to go with us, but when he found Mr. Ryan could not leave he consented to stay at home. We will make the round trip on the boat, stopping off at Louisville while the boat goes to Cincinnati and back."

Mrs. Ryan and Mrs. Noonan have been inseparable companions since early childhood, and Mrs. Ryan would have married two years ago if Mrs. Noonan had not refused to become engaged.—Memphis Dispatch to the New York Times.

that we love one another." She returned it with the following, second chapter of Ruth, verse 10: "Then she fell on her face and bowed herself to the ground and said unto him: Why have I found favor in thine eyes that thou shouldst take notice of me, seeing I am a stranger to you?" He returned the book pointing to verse 12 of the third epistle of John: "Having many things to write unto you but I trust to come unto you and speak face to face." From the above interview the marriage took place the following week.—Kansas City Journal.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

By Selfish Interests Only.

A few Republican papers, which appear as "decoy ducks" for Free-Trade Democratic ideas, assume that there is a "demand from the people for Tariff revision." Just when, where or who the aforesaid people have spoken on the subject is not stated—that point is dodged outright, leaving the assertion to stand as an impudent assumption. If the distinguished editors of these papers would get a little nearer the people and get the idea out of their heads that "what we want the people want" it would be better. The fact that there is no general demand for Tariff tinkering. There is only a special demand from interested parties who would run the country in the ground if only their special could be exploited by Free-Trade. The farmer doesn't want the Tariff meddled with, neither does the workman, the manufacturer, the trades, or in short any other of the great producing interests of the country. The very few schedules that need revision can be attended to in due time, but the hurry is not great. It is only the Free-Trade Democrats and the purely selfish interests in the Republican party that are making all this howl for revision.

The Republican party must go into the next Presidential campaign with one general object in view. That object is the Protection of the farming, the laboring and the business interests of the country at large. Without that it would and should be defeated.—Tiffin (O.) "Tribune."

So General Bingham, "with forty thousand men marched up the hill, and then marched down again."

What has Mr. Hager to say about the proposed Constitutional Amendment requiring a tax receipt before one can vote?

If Bingham is to be side tracked in favor of Tyler, what disposition is to be made of Dick Knott? Hope he is not to be dumped back on the Republicans.

Bob. Franklin cannot escape responsibility by denying any knowledge of the attempts to bribe a Governor of Indiana. They were made by an employed attorney for the commonwealth and one who received a good slice of the $100,000 reward fund.

If the proposed Constitutional Amendment carries, we will have to pin our tax receipt to our registration certificate and "vote" them both to the polls, or be refused a vote. It is difficult enough to vote now, without throwing any further impediments in the way. Vote down the tax receipt amendment. It is another scheme to debauch elections.

It doubtless is as well that the Fiscal Court called off the bond issue election, as it would have been a needless expense to the county. While there were a good many citizens who would have supported it, it could not carry at this time. The good roads sentiment must be encouraged, though, and so soon as possible macadamizing should begin. That is the only way to make permanent good roads in this country.

GIVES UP ALL HOPE.

Since the disgraceful surrender of Mayor Bingham, after all his boastful talk about reforming Louisville, Democrats have given up all hope of carrying the city this fall. In a two column editorial last Monday the Courier-Journal "spews" up both factions and admits that neither had any show to win the election in the following terse language:

"The proposal to hold a Primary and to run a ticket, with Mr. Tyler at its head, lets a body of gentlemen out who probably wanted to get out, and puts a body of gentlemen in who will wish they had stayed out after the November election."

TEN YEARS OF DINGLEY TARIFF.

Last Wednesday was the tenth anniversary of the enactment of the Dingley Tariff law. And what a change there is in conditions!

Ten years is not a long period in the world's history. The memories of most of us can easily span it. Ten years ago our foreign trade was less than $2,000,000,000, now it is more than $3,000,000,000 a year. Then the Government revenues were insufficient to cover the expenditures, while now, with the expenditures greatly increased, we have a substantial surplus. At that time business was depressed and industry languished, while now there is prosperity on every side. Ten years ago freight cars were going to decay on the sidings with no call for their use, and now, with vastly increased equipment, it is the freight that is tied up because there are not cars enough. The ten years under the Dingley Tariff have been such years of activity and growth as neither this country nor the world has ever known.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

In his opening speech at Lexington last Saturday Mr. Hager laid down the Democratic platform, claiming that as he was nominated by a primary election, the power to do this had been delegated to him by the people. His platform consisted of eleven short sections, all generalities which, for the most part, everybody endorses. Not one word, however, about Sunday closing, or the county unit proposition. Now, what is the Hartford Herald going to do to Mr. Hager about this. It has "chewed the rag" these many days, because it thought the Republican platform was silent about Sunday closing, and now finds itself in as bad predicament as when it denounced the Republican party and called all Christian Republicans, of whom it admitted there were "many," to desert it, because a letter had been sent out asking dollar contributions for campaign purposes, and awoke a few days afterward to find on its desk a letter signed by the Democratic National Chairman asking the identical same thing. "Consistency thou art a jewel." Will the Herald be consistent and inform its readers that the Democratic platform, as given out by candidate Hager, ignores the Sunday closing question, and also the county unit question, and that the criticism, which it has leveled at Republicans for weeks, applies to its own party with greater force?

This platform contains no word of hope for those who desire non-partisan courts, and non-partisan boards for our charitable institutions. No word of encouragement for those who desire to see the registration certificate law repealed. That our readers may see what it says, and more important, what it does not say, we print below this remarkable one man platform:

First—Insistence upon faithfulness and economy in the management of public affairs; demanding that public office shall be recognized as a public trust.

Second—For the impartial and energetic enforcement of all laws.

Third—That there shall be no expenditure of public money except in obedience to law, and that strict economy shall be observed in public expenditures.

Fourth—In favor of fostering and developing the educational interests of the State.

Fifth—Insistence upon just and reasonable rates and impartial service from the railroads within principles fair alike to the railroads and to the public.

Sixth—Requiring that all corporations shall bear their just and due proportion of the burden of taxation—no less and no more; that they shall come up to the full requirements of the revenue laws—all interests being placed on an equal footing in the matter of taxation.

Seventh—Welcoming every reform in administrative methods that will reduce the cost of government to the people.

Eighth—Favoring improvement in every respect possible in the conduct of the State's public institutions, especially with regard to asylums for the insane.

Ninth—Advocating the promotion of the material development of the State and of conditions that invite the investment of capital within or borders.

Tenth—Expressing opposition to all economic police that make for the upbuilding of trusts or other combinations that operate to oppress both consumer and producer of the products of the farm.

Eleventh—Calling for faithful adherence to the Constitution, and to the Jeffersonian doctrine of justice and equal rights to all.

Same Thing Over Again.

The country got a dose of it from 1893 to 1897, when the McKinley restoration lifted the country out of the mire of despondency. They wanted cheaper things in those days and in due time they got them. Horses were given away on the farms of Iowa. Hogs went down to $2.50 and cattle were high at $3 per hundred. All farm produce could be had cheap and labor also was cheapened. Everything was cheap and in all the large cities soup was so cheap that it was given away to the hungry men and women who were out of work. Coxey and Kelly started to march armies of the unemployed across the country to storm the doors of the national government. In the height of the distress Coin wrote his famous book in favor of cheapening even the American dollar, and Mr. Bryan came forward with his speech about crucifying somebody on a cross of gold, which won him the presidential nomination.

Through the distress and in the midst of those cheap things there came to be had through the opening of the mills, in order that the people might again have work at fair wages and would again be able to buy products of the farm and gardens and poultry yards and creameries of the country. They took the advice of McKinley. He was elected President. The Tariff was again "revised," but not in the direction of the pratings of the modern revisionists. The Dingley law was the result. Almost immediately the country leaped forward and upward and prosperity was the lot of the whole land. Laboring men got more for their labor and farmers got more for their products. But with fatness came discontent of another kind. The envious ones, while doing well themselves, thought that somebody else was doing still better and so they were taught to want another change. Some are now clamoring for that other change.

Perhaps they will get it. Every generation has to learn its own lesson.

They want to go through the process again. But some will be sorry for it. As soon as a few men are thrown out of work, as they will be if the country goes on fussing, things will be cheaper. They may even become as cheap again as they were a dozen years ago. But however cheap they are, what shall it benefit men if they have not even the money with which to buy cheap things? As for the rich, they will take care of themselves. They will buy up the things that are cheap, lay them aside until the next rise comes.

Great is the process. Great are the agitators. Great are the discontented, the reformers. This is a great world, and politics is one of the greatest games in it.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

Demands The Reason.

With the conviction growing stronger every day that the principal issue of the next Presidential campaign will be the Tariff and with a number of prominent Republicans like Taft, Cummins and La Follette openly taking the Democratic side of the question, it is of the utmost importance that the Republican party speedily decides where it stands on this most vital principle of Republicanism and by a conference of its leaders, or an expression by States and districts, determines whether the Republican policy of Protection shall have a place in the next national platform or whether the party will face about completely, join the Democracy and become an advocate of Free-Trade or a Tariff for revenue only.

With men who claim prominence in the councils of the party openly advocating Free-Trade, it is high time they be called upon for a reason for their demands, and as Senator Foraker, of Ohio, says, "furnish a bill of particulars" that will give Republicans a reason for renouncing the cardinal principle of their faith and going over to those whose belief and policy on this great question have hitherto been the cause of disaster and ruin to American industries.

How is Tariff revision to benefit the United States? What great advantage will the people derive from a change of schedules? How will it increase the output of farm, factory and mine? Where will it open new markets? When will it open new mills? In what line of business will it create an opening for more capital and what great division of labor will secure increased wages because of its adoption?

Why should the farmers of Cooper county support Tariff revision? The last time they did so brought ruin to them and the products of their farms were so low in price as to hardly be worth harvesting. The experiences of 1893 were too costly to the people of this section to be repeated without good reason and after careful study. It remains for the advocates of this Democratic theory to show cause for their contention before Republicans entertain the thought of abandoning the policy which has brought and maintained prosperity.—Central Missouri Republican.

On the Firing Line.

The Louisville Herald has announced that it has perfected plans whereby it will be represented by a capable staff correspondent, who will accompany the candidate for Governor, Augustus E. Willson, on his speech-making itinerary and furnish full reports of the progress of the fight for good government, also the speeches of the Republican orators, and the incidents of the campaign.

The Herald has also arranged for an additional staff representative at Frankfort, at the center from which the enemy's activities will be directed. Advance information will be supplied through its columns as to the plans of Beckham and Hager, and the maneuvering of the Democratic forces. The whole field of political warfare will be thoroughly covered.

The way to get rid of a cold, whether it be a "bad cold" or just a little sneeze, is to get it out of your system through the bowels. Nearly all Cough Cures, especially those that contain opiates, are constipating. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup contains no opiates and acts gently on the bowels. Pleasant to take. Sold by all Druggists.

Among The Lodges.

Hartford lodge No. 675 F. & A. M., met last Monday at 2:30 o'clock p. m., and three candidates were giving the Entered Apprentice degree. At night three Entered Apprentices were made Fellow Crafts. Besides the degree work considerable routine matter was disposed of. The attendance was not large, owing to the inclement weather, but good work was done by all those present, several members filling stations which they had never attempted before, in a creditable manner. A call meeting will be held next Monday night, and the Master urges everyone to attend, if possible.

Wheat and Fertilizer

Don't You know that there more is money to be made with less labor, in the proper combination of these two elements in properly prepared soil than most any other two known to progressive farming?

Don't you know that the growing of wheat is absolutely necessary to the proper rotation of crops for the improvement of your soil?

Don't you know that by the liberal use of HORSE SHOE BRAND of Fertilizers you can make your farm a little better every year? And you will not only make your farm better, but have a much greater yield. And just think how much happier you are when you go into a field to harvest a crop and find an abundance to bring home to the garner! We have our warehouse filled with tons upon tons of the Horse Shoe Brand of Fertilizer for Wheat.

The success of a wheat crop depends entirely upon the liberal use of the right kind of commercial fertilizer. You know the Horse Shoe Brand is right, because it has been used by the best farmers in this country for over twenty-two years.

Drive your wagon to our store and we will take you to our warehouse and give you the very stuff that will make you money and make you happy.

night. The third rank was conferred by the people who are footing the bills.

But the most discreditable feature of the Democratic candidate's pitiable exhibition was the weaving of the bloody shirt of Goebelism, and the deliberate appeal made to passion and hatred in which Gov. Beckham joined him. So frequently was this dark page in Kentucky history referred to by both speakers that it would seem as if the Democrats, failing in any definite policy of progress in administration of the State, had determined to resurrect the dead and parade the ghost of their unhappy leader as an issue. It is a poor cause that will seek to divide a State eager for peace, for concord and for neighborliness upon a question of this kind. That man is no patriot who will deliberately pander to latent bitterness and fan the dying embers of a fire that has already left ugly scars upon the Commonwealth. Do the Democrats want the Republicans to take up this matter and tell over again the shameful story of persecution for political purposes of Caleb Powers, through purchased juries and partisan Judges? Cannot both parties agree to honor justice and the law in this wretched affair, and free the State forever from its shadow?

The Lexington Herald said of Mr. Willson that he had pitched his campaign upon a high plane. We wish we could honestly say the same of Mr. Hager, but it is impossible.—Louisville Herald.

Gov. Beckham indulged in the attitudes and Mr. Hager in the attitudes. The former dramatically apostrophized his mother, talking a somewhat mean advantage of her by calling her to witness that he had never in public or private life done anything to be ashamed of; while the latter paraded a platform that for polite and respectable generalities is a masterpiece of compilation.

Mr. Hager's speech was evidently prepared, and must have kept the dope bureau at Frankfort busy for many nights. Printed copies were distributed to the press before delivery, and the candidate followed his manuscript laboriously and with such weary effect that his audience began to leave before he reached the end.

contract for the new capitol architect called for a fee of $40,000 to be paid to Architect Andrews, and this in view of the fact that Mr. Meyer, an architect of experience in such work, had offered to undertake it for $16,000. Later, Mr. Hager went on to say, owing to the decision to use marble in the construction of the building, another $11,000 was added to Mr. Andrews' fee.

That is all very interesting, but the tax payers of the State are still wondering why they should have to pay $51,000 for work that could have been done for $16,000.

In commenting on the extravagance in public printing, Mr. Hager was even weaker in his attempted excuse. He does not deny that the books, which Mr. Willson says were charged to the State at an exorbitant price, cost almost seven times what they could have been produced for. He simply says that, for some inscrutable reason the public will be slow to appreciate, they could not be gotten for less. Surely this is a confession of weakness and inaptitude that will not be overlooked.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla.

W. B. HOWARD KILLED BY CIRCUS TRAIN

Was Twenty-Five Years Old and is Survived by Wife and Four Children.

W. B. Howard was instantly killed late Monday night on the Illinois Central railroad track at Deanfield by an engine pulling the Cole Brothers show train, which left Owensboro at 11:30 o'clock Monday night. After the train hit Howard it was discovered by the men on the train, and his body was found shortly afterwards, but he was dead. It is said that Howard had been drinking a good deal during Monday and was in an intoxicated condition and went to sleep on the railroad track.

Howard was thirty-five years old and is survived by a wife and four children. He was considered a good citizen in Deanfield and had many friends. He was engineer in the Deanfield coal plant. He was known to drink excessive at times. The funeral services were conducted from the residence Wednesday morning at Deanfield.

Brilliant Opening of Hartford College.

The fall session of Hartford College began Monday morning with all teachers present except Mrs. Gray, who came the next day. The prospects are better than ever for a good school and all students seemed anxious to begin work. Many patrons and former students were present. Col. C. M. Barnett, C. M. Crowe and Judge J. S. Glenn of the Board of Education, Prof. Gray C. P. Keown and Mrs. J. S. Glenn gave some interesting, as well as instructive talks. Prof. T. J. Morton, of Island, Ky., who for several years was at the head of the college, gave an interesting talk that was highly appreciated. Many non-resident students are in attendance and many more will come after the fair. The following are the non-resident students: Forest Salmon Fred Wittinghill, A. J. Bratcher, Roy Hatcher, Enos Moseley, Devert Moseley, Leslie Saulz, Belva Leach, Julia Leach, Donia Wilson, Mabel Webb, Hattie Glenn, Cora Jackson, Amy Huff, Bessie Mason, Clara Robertson, Beatrice Haynes and Lizzie Wilson, and Weston Melancon and Theare Holier, of Louisiana. The total enrollment for Monday was two hundred.

The literary folks are getting active. The Hypatian and Adelpian literary societies will be organized in a short time. Athletics are not to be neglected this year. The young men have organized two strong teams of basket ball players.

KILLED BY ILLINOIS CENTRAL FREIGHT TRAIN

Will Edwards Attempts to Board Moving Train and Falls Under it.

Will Edwards, of Horton, was instantly killed at 5 p. m. Tuesday at Beaver Dam, by an Illinois Central freight train.

Edwards attempted to catch the train as it passed him to ride home. The train was moving rapidly, and when he caught to the hand bar he was thrown violently to the ground under the wheels. His head was crushed and leg and an arm were cut off.

Edwards was a young man, eighteen years of age. He had been to Beaver Dam to see the Cole Brothers circus, and had started home, walking along the railroad track and on seeing the approaching train determined to ride it.

Judge W. B. Taylor was notified and he and County Attorney Woodward went to Beaver Dam and held an inquest. The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts. It is reported that young Edwards' mother had a dream a short while ago that her son would meet death in the way that he did.

THE LONGING DESIRE FOR A CHANGE.

Not Due to Fatigue, But to The Monotony of Everyday Tasks.

Despite the love and interest we bear our associates and surroundings, a time comes when we grow weary and jaded, and naturally long for some sort of "change." We have no desire for a substitution of other objects and faces as a permanency; we merely seek to break the monotony of things before entering on a fresh chapter in our lives.

The desire for "a change" can hardly derive its origin from the nature of our occupation. There is nothing common to all professions and businesses which clamor for stated relief. Nor can the desire for "a change" be due to mere fatigue, because this is alleviated by daily recurring periods of rest. Moreover, the natural laws provide that each repetition of an act renders its performance both easier and more simple.

Some men talk of the necessity for rest as though every fragment of mental and physical power was completely exhausted. Yet on close observation of them, when the desired change has been secured, it is quite evident their powers were not seriously weakened.

There may be some temporary failure of energy brought about by sheer monotony, but this is a very different thing from complete exhaustion. The centers of force from which strength and energy are derived may easily become lethargic from an unavoidable lack of fresh stimulus.

The common round of daily life, in the home as well as in the house of business, in consequence of its monotonous routine, ceases at times to stir the center of energy and strength of purpose; and when these springs of force are not vigorously active there is a lack of interest in the work, and therefore, a feeling of loss of power.

Now, the way in which "a change" operates is not so much by affording exemption from toil as by supplying fresh stimulants for the lethargic centers of energy. This point is important because it directs attention at once to the way in which "a change" should be employed.

Every mistaken notion that the weariness demanding the change is the outcome of exhaustion must be entirely put aside. The physical and mental powers are not used up; they are merely asking for some variation of the stimulus. The fire may have died down, but simply because it has not been properly stirred.

The motor, the yacht, the fishing rod and the gun, and the camera, in their legitimate uses, play the part of stimulants, though not to all of us in a like degree. Some find what they need walking through country lanes and villages; others prefer the Continental trip with its hubbub of foreign tongues. There are persons more happy when encountering the discomforts of a tour or excursion, and there are other more sensitive individuals, who instead of being stimulated by difficulties to travel, would quickly succumb.

The perpetual round of excitement that one obtains at most seaside resorts is hardly the sort of stimulant for the jaded nerves and tired body of a busy worker. Something must be radically wrong in the "change" if, on returning to one's home and business, the routine duties seem to be more than ever distasteful.

The "change" that best suits the average person is one that stirs up his energies naturally and honestly, and in perfect accord with his ordinary mode of life. Energy thus elicited will add to the stock of useful force, and will prove to be available long after the holiday has passed. Unless some such effect as this is produced, the "change" has failed of its main purpose, viz., the brightening of life and the improvement of mental and physical health.—Pearson's Weekly.

Worked Like a Charm.

Mr. D. N. Walker, editor of that spicy journal, the Enterprise, Louisville, Va., says: "I ran a nail in my foot last week and at once applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. No inflammation followed; the salve simply healed the wound." Heals every sore burn and skin disease. Guaranteed at all druggists. 25c.

That Military Escort.

Probably in the history of this country no Governor in his sane and sober senses ever made a more absurd proposition than that which recently issued from the executive mansion at Frankfort, offering to former Governor William S. Taylor a military guard to protect him from arrest in case he should return to Kentucky.

"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad," is a saying that leaps to one's mind on reading of this proposal to set the militia of the State in opposition to its administration of the law. The suggestion is nothing short of anarchical, subversive of the fundamental principles of government, and creating a precedent from which only chaos and disorder could result. Gov. Beckham knows better than most men that to put the military between Taylor and arrest is merely to set one arm of the government at variance with another. Should any Sheriff or citizen attempt to act upon the indictment that still stands against the former Governor's name, and the military guard resisted such action under orders from the Governor, it would develop a crisis justifying the impeachment of the latter for treason to the laws of the State.

Is it not enough that Kentucky has been dragged through the mire of partisan trials with political judges and packed juries, that it should now be exposed to the ridicule of the country by this latest absurdity of its Governor? Surely the sensible Democrats of the State cannot fail to rebuke sternly by voice and vote the shameless and senseless effort to make political capital out of the matter so serious.

Franklin and Beckham are making a laughing stock of the Democratic party, and if it is wrecked and overwhelmed in a storm of popular disapproval in November no man will be more to blame than the Governor.—Louisville Herald.

Found at Last.

J. A. Harmon, of Lizmore, West Va., says: "At last I have found the perfect pill that never disappoints me; and for the benefit of others afflicted with torpid liver and chronic constipation, will say: take Dr. King's New Life Pills." Guaranteed satisfactory. 25c at all druggists.

What is a Kiss.

With most civilized and many uncivilized people the kiss is the natural expression of love and kindred feelings.

How is it, then, to be explained that a kiss has become to be of such vast importance? How is it that a light touch of the lips is able to express our inmost feelings more eloquently than the words of any language?

Is this to be considered something primitive or something artificial and conventional? It's as natural to kiss when we love as to laugh when we are happy or cry when we are sad. In other words is Steele right when he says that nature has taught us to kiss, and that it began with the first courtship.

I shall try to answer this question but I must advance the remark that we here touch something of which we cannot know anything definitely, and that all we can do is to put forward more or less plausible theories.

First, it is important to remember that many nations do not know the kiss in its ordinary form. It is unknown in the greater part of Polynesia, in Madagascar, and among many negro tribes in Africa, principally, of course, among those who mutilate their lips.

W. Reade tells of the terror of a young negro girl when he kissed her. It is also unknown among the Patagonians and the Eskimos as well as among the natives of part of Finland. B. Taylor says in his "Northern Travel" that, while in Finland men and women may bathe together; kissing is considered immoral and indecent. When he told a Finnish woman that it was common in England for husband and wife to kiss each other, she replied indignantly, "If my husband dared try that I should box his ears so that he would feel it for a week."

If one then asks what takes the place of the kiss among these people, it should be remembered that there are an infinite number of greetings. Some people slap each other's hands or stomach, others blow on each other's hands, while still others scratch their right ear and put out their tongues.

In many countries greetings are exchanged with the nose. This is the so-called Malay kiss, which consists of rubbing the noses together. This nose greeting is found among the Polynesians, Malays, Eskimos and negro tribes in Africa—all people who do not know the usual kiss.

It seems that this nose greeting is a very primitive custom, whose origin is rooted in the sense of smelling. Spencer says: "The sheep brays to call back its little runaway lamb. It sniffs at several lambs gamboling around it, and recognizes its own by smelling it, and rejoices at the reunion. By repetition a certain relation between the two factors is developed so that the odor of the lamb gives rise to a feeling of joy in the mother sheep."

As every animal has its own peculiar odor, thus has also every human individual. When Isaac, the patriarch grew old, his eyesight grew dim and he could not see. He wanted to bless his oldest son, Esau, but Jacob deceived him by putting on his brother's clothes. Isaac then said to him: "Come nearer, my son, and kiss me." He smelled the odor of his clothes and blessed him, saying: "Lo, the odor of my son is like unto a field, blessed be the Lord."

To smell the peculiar odor of a human being, whom one loves, produces

joy. Timkowski writes of a Mongolian father, who from time to time smelled his son's head. This with the Mongolian is a sign of fatherly love.

In the Philippines the sense of smell in the natives is so acute that by smelling a handkerchief they can tell to whom it belongs, and loving couples who part give to each other pieces of their clothes, and while away from each other they remember each other by smelling them.

That is a fine aroma arising from the body of a beautiful woman plays a very important part in love affairs in all nations, is too well-known to be mentioned.

It is not very likely that the inspiratory muscular movements of the lips should be the natural physical reflex of a feeling of love, as for instance the contraction of the muscles of the brows may be a direct manifestation of anger.

Neither do I believe that the mere touch of the lips has primarily been enough to say "I love you," but rather to be considered the means to enjoy a certain sexual feeling, a way of enjoying through the nerves of nose and lips the peculiar odor of another human being.—Louisville Times.

Occasional headache, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncorrected, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by all druggists.

Interchange of Union Cards.

A formal agreement has been reached between John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, for an interchange of cards between the two organizations. This matter had been before the annual conventions of the two organizations for several years and not until the last annual convention was the matter given any support. Then it was that the members in convention authorized their head officials to enter into negotiations for an interchange of cards.

The agreement, recently made finally disposes of the question, and from now on any member of either of the two organizations who finds himself outside the jurisdiction of his particular body, may affiliate with the sister organization by merely depositing his cards and will be entitled to the protection given other members.

Base Ball.

One of the most interesting events of the week of the institute was the hotly contested game of base ball, on Thursday evening, between the boys of Hartford and a picked nine from among the teachers; resulting in a score of 24 to 8 in favor of the Institute boys, which clearly demonstrates the fact that "Education pays."

THE LONGING DESIRE FOR A CHANGE.

Not Due to Fatigue, But to The Monotony of Everyday Tasks.

Despite the love and interest we bear our associates and surroundings, a time comes when we grow weary and jaded, and naturally long for some sort of "change." We have no desire for a substitution of other objects and faces as a permanency; we merely seek to break the monotony of things before entering on a fresh chapter in our lives.

The desire for "a change" can hardly derive its origin from the nature of our occupation. There is nothing common to all professions and businesses which clamor for stated relief. Nor can the desire for "a change" be due to mere fatigue, because this is alleviated by daily recurring periods of rest. Moreover, the natural laws provide that each repetition of an act renders its performance both easier and more simple.

Some men talk of the necessity for rest as though every fragment of mental and physical power was completely exhausted. Yet on close observation of them, when the desired change has been secured, it is quite evident their powers were not seriously weakened.

There may be some temporary failure of energy brought about by sheer monotony, but this is a very different thing from complete exhaustion. The centers of force from which strength and energy are derived may easily become lethargic from an unavoidable lack of fresh stimulus.

The common round of daily life, in the home as well as in the house of business, in consequence of its monotonous routine, ceases at times to stir the center of energy and strength of purpose; and when these springs of force are not vigorously active there is a lack of interest in the work, and therefore, a feeling of loss of power.

Now, the way in which "a change" operates is not so much by affording exemption from toil as by supplying fresh stimulants for the lethargic centers of energy. This point is important because it directs attention at once to the way in which "a change" should be employed.

Every mistaken notion that the weariness demanding the change is the outcome of exhaustion must be entirely put aside. The physical and mental powers are not used up; they are merely asking for some variation of the stimulus. The fire may have died down, but simply because it has not been properly stirred.

The motor, the yacht, the fishing rod and the gun and the camera, in their legitimate uses, play the part of stimulants, though not to all of us in a like degree. Some find what they need walking through country lanes and villages; others prefer the Continental trip with its hubbub of foreign tongues. There are persons more happy when encountering the discomforts of a tour or excursion, and there are other more sensitive individuals, who instead of being stimulated by difficulties to travel, would quickly succumb.

The perpetual round of excitements that one obtains at most seaside resorts is hardly the sort of stimulant for the jaded nerves and tired body of a busy worker. Something must be radically wrong in the "change" if, on returning to one's home and business, the routine duties seem to be more than ever distasteful.

The "change" that best suits the average person is one that stirs up his energies naturally and honestly, and in perfect accord with his ordinary mode of life. Energy thus elicited will add to the stock of useful force, and will prove to be available long after the holiday has passed. Unless some such effect as this is produced, the "change" has failed of its main purpose, viz., the brightening of life and the improvement of mental and physical health.—Pearson's Weekly.

Worked Like a Charm.

Mr. D. N. Walker, editor of that spicy journal, the Enterprise, Louisa, Va., says: "I ran a nail in my foot last week and at once applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. No inflammation followed; the salve simply healed the wound." Heals every sore burn and skin disease. Guaranteed at all druggists. 25c.

That Military Escort.

Probably in the history of this country no Governor in his sane and sober senses ever made a more absurd proposition than that which recently is sued from the executive mansion at Frankfort, offering to former Governor William S. Taylor a military guard to protect him from arrest in case he should return to Kentucky.

"Whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad," is a saying that leaps to one's mind on reading of this proposal to set the militia of the State in opposition to its administration of the law. The suggestion is nothing short of anarchical, subversive of the fundamental principles of government, and creating a precedent from which only chaos and disorder could result. Gov. Beckham knows better than most men that to put the military between Taylor and arrest is merely to set one arm of the government at variance with another. Should any Sheriff or citizen attempt to act upon the indictment that still stands against the former Governor's name, and the military guard resisted such action under orders from the Governor, it would develop a crisis justifying the impeachment of the latter for treason to the laws of the State.

Is it not enough that Kentucky has been dragged through the mire of partisan trials with political Judges and packed juries, that it should now be exposed to the ridicule of the country by this latest absurdity of its Governor? Surely the sensible Democrats of the State cannot fail to rebuke sternly by voice and vote the shameless and senseless effort to make political capital out of the matter so serious.

Franklin and Beckham are making a laughing stock of the Democratic party, and if it is wrecked and overwhelmed in a storm of popular disapproval in November no man will be more to blame than the Governor.—Louisville Herald.

Found at Last.

J. A. Harmon, of Lizenore, West Va., says: "At last I have found the perfect pill that never disappoints me; and for the benefit of others afflicted with torpid liver and chronic constipation, will say: take Dr. King's New Life Pills." Guaranteed satisfactory. 25c at all druggists.

What is a Kiss.

With most civilized and many uncivilized people the kiss is the natural expression of love and kindred feelings.

How is it, then, to be explained that a kiss has become to be of such vast importance? How is it that a light touch of the lips is able to express our inmost feelings more eloquently than the words of any language?

Is this to be considered something primitive or something artificial and conventional? It's as natural to kiss when we love as to laugh when we are happy or cry when we are sad. In other words is Steele right when he says that nature has taught us to kiss, and that it began with the first courtship.

I shall try to answer this question but I must advance the remark that we here touch something of which we cannot know anything definitely, and that all we can do is to put forward more or less plausible theories.

First, it is important to remember that many nations do not know the kiss in its ordinary form. It is unknown in the greater part of Polynesia, in Madagascar, and among many negro tribes in Africa, principally, of course, among those who mutilate their lips.

W. Reade tells of the terror of a young negro girl when he kissed her. It is also unknown among the Patagonians and the Eskimos as well as among the natives of part of Finland. B. Taylor says in his "Northern travel" that, while in Finland men and women may bathe together; kissing is considered immoral and indecent. When he told a Finnish woman that it was common in England for husband and wife to kiss each other, she replied indignantly, "If my husband dared try that I should box his ears so that he would feel it for a week."

If one then asks what takes the place of the kiss among these people, it should be remembered that there are an infinite number of greetings. Some people slap each other's hands or stomach, others blow on each other's hands, while still others scratch their right ear and put out their tongues.

In many countries greetings are exchanged with the nose. This is the so-called Malay kiss, which consists of rubbing the noses together. This nose greeting is found among the Polynesians, Malays, Eskimos and negro tribes in Africa—all people who do not know the usual kiss.

It seems that this nose greeting is a very primitive custom, whose origin is rooted in the sense of smelling. Spencer says: "The sheep brays to call back its little runaway lamb. It sniffs at several lambs gamboling around it, and recognizes its own by smelling it, and rejoices at the reunion. By repetition a certain relation between the two factors is developed so that the odor of the lamb gives rise to a feeling of joy in the mother sheep."

As every animal has its own peculiar odor, thus has also every human individual. When Isaac, the patriarch grew old, his eyesight grew dim and he could not see. He wanted to bless his oldest son, Esau, but Jacob deceived him by putting on his brother's clothes. Isaac then said to him: "Come nearer, my son, and kiss me." He smelled the odor of his clothes and blessed him, saying: "Lo, the odor of my son is like unto a field, blessed be the Lord."

To smell the peculiar odor of a human being, whom one loves, produces

joy. Timkowski writes of a Mongolian father, who from time to time smelled his son's head. This with the Mongolian is a sign of fatherly love.

In the Philippines the sense of smell in the natives is so acute that by smelling a handkerchief they can tell to whom it belongs, and loving couples who part give to each other pieces of their clothes, and while away from each other they remember each other by smelling them.

That is a fine aroma arising from the body of a beautiful woman plays a very important part in love affairs in all nations, is too well-known to be mentioned.

THE BEAUTIES OF NIAGARA FALLS

Vivid Description, by one who Recently Visited There.

Expressed by Awful Grandure of the Falls' Greatest Wonder-- One of Interest at Detroit.

Rep:—The undersigned was a party composed of Miss J. R. Pirtle, J. C. Her, R. and Berry L. Taylor, of this who were joined in Louisville, some one hundred and twenty Kentuckians, constituted a Kentucky party who visited the Niagara Falls.

at Louisville, Ky., over the B. & O. Railway on the morning of 10, at 8:10. Arriving at Ohio, we proceeded over the Railway, via Hamilton and Genesee, to the Miama Valley and the great oil fields of Ohio, to-nation on either side of us. Demo storage tanks, sufficient in number so we were told, in his 1,000,000 barrels of oil. In said through this section, we were as the finest portion of the er part of Ohio. The land is in the tence of cultivation, numerous his by splendid cities, the number of factories alth measurable.

On an ang at Detroit, Mich., our entire of 10 Pullman sleepers was transacted across the Detroit river by the Grand Trunk railway, about 300 miles, through as fine farming country as one could wish to look upon and for the first time in our existence in a foreign land, a land where the inhabitants thereof hold allegiance to, and do homage to King Edward. This part of the Province of Ontario is certainly a garden spot, so to speak. Arriving at Niagara Falls, N. Y., at 1:30 p. m., on Sunday, the 11th, tired, dirty and ferociously hungry, we were lodged at the hotel provided for us by the railroad company in the midst of a waiter's strike, and for this reason we were poorly served during our sojourn at this point. After making some needed changes in the outer appearance, of, and having in a measure satisfied the inner part of man, we proceeded to view some of the many sights to be seen only at this world famed spot. Prospect Park, Luna and Goat Islands are beauty spots, long to be remembered, the shores of which are washed and cooled by the torrents of rushing water of the rapids above the Falls proper.

The sights around Niagara Falls are best seen by taking the belt line, "Niagara Gorge" railway from the New York side of the river and crossing to the Canadian side over the upper Steel Arch bridge, from whence you get fairly good view of the falls and upper rapids below the falls. Proceeding up the river on the Canadian side to the Observation tower, to which we ascended by a flight of winding stairs, where we obtained our best view, and the awful grandure of this greatest, of all nature's wonderous creations is beheld and gazed upon by the awe-stricken, but electrified sight-seer. The rapids above appear as formed, only for fitting the vast sheet of water "as it here attains great speed" for making it's sheer leap and bound of 160 feet to the unexplored depths below, from whence great volumes rebound in enormous sheets of mist and spray to a height at times, of probably 200 feet. As the enchanted spectator gazes upon the mountain of mist and spray he sees rain bows as beautiful as the eye of man ever beheld, and as you gaze upon this whirling torrent as it leaps from the great precipice you see it's color change and take on every conceivable hue from dark and lowering sky to that of the whitest of snow. In the midst of it all, we feel our insufficiency, our utter helplessness, in even faintly attempting to describe the grandure of it all.

In the river and rapids below the Falls, some 300 yards "guessing at distance" one is, as it were, in the down pour of mist and spray, in the hardest of rain falls, we experienced this, in a trip up the river on The Maid of The Mist, a small but powerfully constructed Steam Boat, which we reached by descending to the waters edge, by a flight of stairs at about 1/4 mile below the American, or New York Falls. This stair-way was constructed by commencing at some distance back from the edge of the Gorge, and running through a sort of tunnel down to the boat landing, on this trip we were dressed in rubber coats, helmets and etc., in order to protect us from the downpour of water. We passed up and beyond the American Falls and approached as it appeared to us, dangerously near the Canadian or great Horse Shoe Falls, where the water appeared as though stirred by a thousand Demons and at times would leap and bound upon the boat in sufficient quantities to thoroughly soak ones feet, but as the boat was so constructed, the water at once fell back into the river. This trip over, we now continue our journey down the Canadian side, on the heights and at times on the very brink of the 300 foot gorge of looking the rapids below. On arriving at the whirlpool rapids we descended by way of an Incline Railway, where we stood at the very edge of the boiling, pitching torrent of water, in the midst of the world wide, famous gorge with the solid and almost perpendicular rock walls on either side of us towering in height to 300 feet. Here it is that the power and grandure of the cataract is, in some respects at least, greatest. It speaks to us of the countless ages and centuries of the hidden past, here it is we decide that man's knowledge of the ages of the past, that man's knowlgs of the lapse of time since the world was, and has been, is but a feeble and vain guess, for, when you think of the millions and millions of cubic feet of solid stone which has been eaten away, and torn from this great Canyon by the ever rushing torrent, "for surely no other agency save that supplied by nature, and many freezes of the countless winters of the mysterious past has had any part in the formation of this stupendous chasm" you feel constrained to exclaim, man, your boasted knowledge of the lapse of time, your generally accepted notion of bygone time, is as by a babe compared to the age of Methuselah of old, to be sure this gorge is being slowly but surely widened and deepened, but the change has been so slight since the knowledge of man extends, that it is not at all perceptible. The conclusion above drawn, is perhaps formed by 9 out of 10 persons who visit this point, and who take the time to meditate upon the ages of friction and wear absolutely necessary to the removal of the mountain of earth and stone here displaced. Here one stands as at no other point in the world, above you some 300 feet, and about 20 miles distant is Lake Erie, with it's hundreds of square miles of smooth and placid waters and still further up and away is Detroit river and the other great lakes, all of which have contributed to the formation of this great gorge and below you some 50 feet and 10 or 12 miles distant is the great lake, Ontario, into which this enormous chasm is ever pouring it's turbulent and chrysal burden. The water at this point attains a rate of speed 25 to 30 miles per hour causing it to leap and jump in great waves and swells to a height of 30 feet. At this point, meditating upon the sublime grandure the wildness of the raging torrent at your feet, at the massive stone walls of the Canyon looming up, and almost o'er you, with a sensation perhaps not before experienced, one naturally marvels, and wonders at the greatness of the Ruler of the destinies of men, the great world framer and our estimation of ourselves must of necessity decrease as our faith in the unerring greatness of the Great Builder increases.

On leaving the whirlpool rapids we ascend and continue our journey around the Gorge. We next pass the point where was fought one of the battles of the war of 1812, where General Brock lost his life, to whose memory there has been erected an imposing monument, this shaft may be seen for miles distant. Here we began our descent into the Gorge some 300 feet below. The railroad makes a circuitous route, crossing the river at Queenston, and below the lower rapids, over the lower, or steel wire suspension bridge. Turning down the river only a short distance to Lewiston New York. At this place the lake steamers land, from which point you may at intervals of every two hours procure lake steamer for Toronto to Canada, the line of the steamers from Lewiston to Toronto, is across the upper and narrow end of Lake Ontario the distance being between 30 and 35 miles, which we made in about one hour and 45 minutes. We spent about five hours in Toronto. This time for the most part, was spent in driving over the city viewing the principal points and places of interest, chief of which was queen's park and the Parliament Building this structure, so we were informed cost $1,750,000 to erect. It was the most magnificent of all the buildings seen by us on our trip. Toronto is a city of churches, with it's population of 320,000 it perhaps has almost if not quite as many churches as any city in the States. We went through the store of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., this is said to be the largest store in Canada and covers a total floor space of 23 acres, employing in all, 6,000 persons. After spending about 5 hours in this Ontario Capital we proceeded to journey back to Niagara Falls, N. Y., on landing at Lewiston in the State of New York, the U. S. Custom official made the writer halt and open up his grip for inspection, to which we could not very seriously object, as we had no diamonds or other things of value to smuggle over the boundary line. The inspection revealed only a tooth brush, hair brush an old dirty Panama hat, two lemons and a very small quantity of old Kentucky the last two named articles as a matter of course we were carrying for the ladies, to be used only in case of accident, sea-sickness and act. Uncle Sam's official looked at the last unnamed article as though he wished to seize and confiscate same, but finally permitted us to depart in peace with our baggage.

We now boarded the Electric car for the Falls, and our ride for about 5 of the 7 miles, as we think, and as informed by experienced travelers, can not be duplicated at any place in the world. The railroad bed for this distance has been built up of stone, or else cut and carved into the side of the huge rock walls of the precipice as near as was possible to the water's edge. The road for this distance is about 200 feet below the road bed on the other side of the river, and as you speed along, at many points you feel the bursting drops of water and spray thrown off in the mad rush of the mighty torrent, strike your face and body, and again you are reminded of the power of the thing. On the trip up the river, one obtains a good view of the great whirlpool, where, at a sharp turn in the river "which makes for lower land" the wild and raging torrent has, in the countless ages of the past eaten away a mountain, so to speak, at this sudden turn the fierce current has ever rebelled, and has worn and ground into this stupendous barrier, which is 315 feet in height for a distance of perhaps 200 yards square, and that too, was almost a solid mass of rock, in displacing this enormous amount of earth and rock a bed for the great whirlpool was formed, into which logs, drift-wood and etc., is drawn and whirled and tossed about for days and days before escaping through the rapids below. We now proceed on our way and in concluding this part of our writing, will say that these great and awe inspiring sights must be seen to be appreciated. I fully realize that I am one of the poorest, among the feeblest, at describing things, as well as in other lines, but no man lives who can by word, brush or pen give to you much idea of the awful and awesome grandure of this, one of the world's greatest natural wonders, because in no manner can the artist throw the roaring, deafening noise, nor throw into your face the mist and spray, the tint of the rain bow, he can not make the water rise and fall, and a hundred other things must of necessity be left out of the picture.

We feel that no one should visit the Falls and fail to pay a visit to the Niagara Falls Museum. For 25 cents one can see a mounted specimen of almost every sort of bird known to man, as also a fine rare collection of animals, snakes, Egyptian Mummies relics and curios.

On leaving Niagara Falls, we went to Buffalo, N. Y., by Interurban line, in that city we spent the greater part of one day, while there we visited the McKinley monument and other places of interest. We left Buffalo on the evening of the 14th, at 5:30 for Detroit, Mich., by Lake Steamer, Eastern States, this steam ship to a land lubber, like myself, seemed a veritable floating palace. Fourteen hours after boarding the ship we landed in Detroit, having made the run of 280 miles at an average rate of 20 miles per hour. We left sight of land on Lake Erie at twilight and at dawn next morning we were coming in sight of mother earth again. On Lake Erie we obtained a fine view of the setting sun as she made her exit, and went to rest over the hill, and into the water beyond.

We spent a full day in Detroit. In and through this city, we were informed freight is handled for nine months of each year in a greater volume than any other city of the United States. The principal and main point of interest visited while in this city, was Belle Isle Park. I very much doubt if this park can be beaten for natural beauty in the whole country. Surrounded by water, full of the choicest of flowers, well kept and cared for, a large number and all species of deer, elk and kindred animals, as well, as a great number of the fiercest and vicious animal, a complete and extensive Aquarium, and last but not least, a great variety of Tropical fruits and plants in a huge hot house, where we saw bananas growing upon stalks or trees 20 to 25 feet in height. In short this Park is all one could or should desire, it seems to us to be perfect in itself.

We left Detroit at 10:45 p. m., on the 15th for home, stopping off at Cincinnati, Ohio, for about 5 hours, this time we spent in dodging about from place to place, trying to keep dry, as it rained incessantly, while in this city. We arrived home on the 17th, with many pleasant recollections of our journey, and time, as seems to us, well spent. Yours very truly, Balloonist Failed to Cut Loose and Clung to Bag Until Gas was Exhausted.

Barnstable, Mass., Aug. 29.—Nearly five thousand persons at the Barnstable county fair saw "Professor" Maloney, the balloonist, drop 20,000 feet to the earth, striking on top of a cedar fence post and escape death. Maloney made the ascent late this afternoon and the crowd saw his attempts to cut his parachute were fruitless.

For fully two miles Maloney floated along, the gas rapidly leaking from the bag above him. He prepared for the long drop. He and the balloon came earthward rapidly. As it neared earth the canvass fell about the body of the aeronaut. He struck in a half standing position on top of a post.

His back is terrible twisted and his left arm injured. The man was picked up in a semi-conscious condition. Physicians say he is not internally injured and will recover.

Hartford Business Institute.

A strong business preparation for a successful commercial career is now recognized as a necessity by every leading men. One of America's greatest business men said, "The young man who starts at this time will stand little chance of success without thorough business training." And for the young woman of to-day, the best safeguard she can have is a business education by means of which to earn her livelihood whenever necessity demands. What could be more pitiable than to see a young woman in luxury, thrown on her own resources without a practical education?

It is no longer a question of getting positions for students, but getting students ready for positions. The demand is greater than the supply. While we have had a strong class of students during the past two years we have not been able to fill the demands that have been made upon us for competent bookkeepers and stenographers. Young men and young women with a good common school education have enrolled with us, finished the course and with their money making capacity greatly increased have gone out to positions of honor and trust.

Do you want to be one of this number of successful young people? If so, write us for further information. Catalogs sent free. Address all communications to Nettie Rogers, Principal, Hartford Ky.

presenting itself to every man is to wear the right kind of clothes. The clothes a man wears indicates his degree of refinement and influences his thought and conduct. With the knowledge that he is wearing correct clothes, all feeling of self-consciousness is eliminated. There is no greater handicap to success than being burdened by thought of one's self. Of equal importance to wearing the right kind of clothes comes the question of getting them at the right place. We can solve the problem for you by requesting you to call at

Vivid Description, by one who Recently Visited There.

Expressed by Awful Grandure of the World's Greatest Wonder-- One of the Most Interesting of the World.

Report:—The undersigned was a member of a party composed of Miss Burton, Mrs. W. S. Tinsley, Mr. J. R. Pirle, J. C. Her, R. and Berry L. Taylor, of this city, who were joined in Louisville, some one hundred and twenty-five persons, constituted a Kentucky party who visited the Niagara Falls.

Left Louisville, Ky., over the B. & O. Railway on the morning of the 10th, at 8:10. Arriving at Buffalo, N. Y., we proceeded over the Erie Railway, via Hamilton and Niagara Falls, to the Miamia Valley and then to the great oil fields of Ohio, to-nigh on either side of us were storage tanks, sufficient to hold number so we were told, in his 1,000,000 barrels of oil. In said through this section, we were as the finest portion of the world. The land is in the process of cultivation, numerous splendid cities, and the number of factories almost innumerable.

On reaching at Detroit, Mich., our entire party of 100 persons were transported across the Detroit river by the Grand Trunk railway, about 300 miles, through as fine farming country as one could wish to look upon and for the first time in our existence in a foreign land, a land where the inhabitants thereof hold allegiance to, and do homage to King Edward. This part of the Province of Ontario is certainly a garden spot, so to speak. Arriving at Niagara Falls, N. Y., at 1:30 p. m., on Sunday, the 11th, tired, dirty and ferociously hungry, we were lodged at the hotel provided for us by the railroad company in the midst of a waiter's strike, and for this reason we were poorly served during our sojourn at this point. After making some needed changes in the outer appearance, of, and having in a measure satisfied the inner part of man, we proceeded to view some of the many sights to be seen only at this world famed spot. Prospect Park, Luna and Goat Islands are beauty spots, long to be remembered, the shores of which are washed and cooled by the torrents of rushing water of the rapids above the Falls proper.

The sights around Niagara Falls are best seen by taking the belt line, "Niagara Gorge" railway from the New York side of the river and crossing to the Canadian side over the upper Steel Arch bridge, from whence you get fairly good view of the falls and upper rapids below the falls. Proceeding up the river on the Canadian side to the Observation tower, to which we ascended by a flight of winding stairs, where we obtained our best view, and the awful grandure of this greatest of all nature's wondrous creations is beheld and gazed upon by the awe-stricken, but electrified sight-seer. The rapids above appear as formed, only for fitting the vast sheet of water "as it here attains great speed" for making its sheer leap and bound of 160 feet to the unexplored depths below, from whence great volumes rebound in enormous sheets of mist and spray to a height at times, of probably 200 feet. In the midst of it all, we feel our insufficiency, our utter helplessness, in even faintly attempting to describe the grandure of it all.

In the river and rapids below the Falls, some 300 yards "guessing at distance" one is, as it were, "in the down pour of mist and spray, in the hardest of rain falls, we experience this, in a trip up the river on The Maid of The Mist, a small but powerfully constructed Steam Boat, which we reached by descending to the waters edge, by a flight of stairs at about 1/4 mile below the American, or New York Falls. For the benefit of all concerned, the following act of the Legislature of Kentucky under the date of March 21, 1906, is published:

"It is hereby declared lawful for any number of persons to combine, unite or pool, any or all of the crops, of wheat, tobacco, corn, oats, hay or other farm products raised by them, for the purpose of classifying, grading, storing holding, selling or disposing of same, either in parcels or as a whole, in order of for the purpose therefor than they might or could obtain or receive by selling said crops separately or individually."

FELL 20,000 FEET AND WILL LIVE.

Balloonnist Failed to Cut Loose and Clung to Bag Until Gas was Exhausted.

Barnstable, Mass., Aug. 29.—Nearly five thousand persons at the Barnstable county fair saw "Professor" Maloney, the balloonist, drop 20,000 feet to the earth, striking on top of a cedar fence post and escape death. Maloney made the ascent late this afternoon and the crowd saw his attempts to cut his parachute were fruitless.

For fully two miles Maloney floated along, the gas rapidly leaking from the bag above him. He prepared for the long drop. He and the balloon came earthward rapidly. As it neared earth the canvass fell about the body of the aeronaut. He struck in a half standing position on top of a post.

His back is terrible twisted and his left arm injured. The man was picked up in a semi-conscious condition. Physicians say he is not internally injured and will recover.

Hartford Business Institute.

A strong business preparation for a successful commercial career is now recognized as a necessity by every leading man. One of America's greatest business men said, "The young man who starts at this time will stand little chance of success without thorough business training." And for the young woman of to-day, the best safeguard she can have is a business education by means of which to earn her livelihood whenever necessity demands. What could be more pitiable than to see a young woman in luxury, thrown on her own resources without a practical education?

It is no longer a question of getting positions for students, but getting students ready for positions. The demand is greater than the supply. While we have had a strong class of students during the past two years we have not been able to fill the demands that have been made upon us for competent bookkeepers and stenographers. Young men and young women with a good common school education have enrolled with us, finished the course and with their money making capacity greatly increased have gone out to positions of honor and trust.

Do you want to be one of this number of successful young people? If so, write us for further information. Catalogs sent free. Address all communications to Nettie Rogers, Principal, Hartford Ky.

One of the Most Important QUESTIONS

presenting itself to every man is to wear the right kind of clothes. The clothes a man wears indicates his degree of refinement and influences his thought and conduct. With the knowledge that he is wearing correct clothes, all feeling of self-consciousness is eliminated. There is no greater handicap to success than being burdened by thought of one's self. Of equal importance to wearing the right kind of clothes comes the question of getting them at the right place. We can solve the problem for you by requesting you to call at

BIG BALLOON RACES

European Sport For Kentucky State Fair.

RAILROAD RATES CUT IN TWO

Tickets Go On Sale Sept. 14 and Are Good Returning Until Sept. 23.

Along with the other big amusement enterprises secured for the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville the week of Sept. 16th, the State Board of Agriculture has contracted with aeronauts to put on balloon races. This is a form of sport that has been responsible for the expenditure of thousands of dollars in Europe among the aristocracy during the past few years. It is perhaps the most exciting of all kinds of races.

The balloons to be used at the Kentucky State Fair are as nearly identical as it is possible to manufacture two articles of the same kind. They are to be inflated with the same pressure of gas. Expert operators are to be in charge. Ballasts of sand weighing the same will be given to each, and the result of the races will depend upon the manipulation of this ballast almost entirely.

The balloons will leave the ground at the same time, ascend to a height that will throw them into a current of air, carrying them naturally in the same direction. If, in the mind's eye of the spectator, he could divide the balloon race into heats, the moment of reaching this air current would be called the first heat. It is here that the excitement begins. From one balloon a bag of sand is thrown out, from the other one or two. In this way one operator gets the advantage, and if he is skillful he wins the heat.

Viewed from any standpoint, the balloon races at the Kentucky State Fair must prove as great an attraction as anything that is billed for the big week which begins Sept. 16th.

TROTS, PACES, RUNNING RACES

Kentucky State Fair Will Have a Great Speed Program.

No matter in what direction the taste of the visitor may run so far as speed contests are concerned, the Kentucky State Fair at Louisville Sept. 16 to 21 will gratify his desire. There are to be trotting races, pacing races, running races, automobile races and balloon races. A trotting or pacing race has been arranged for each day as follows:

Sept. 16th, 2:20 pacing; Sept. 17th, 2:25 trotting; Sept. 18th, 2:13 pacing; Sept. 19th, 2:18 trotting; Sept. 20th, free-for-all pacing; Sept. 21st, 2:10 trotting.

A six-hundred-dollar purse is offered on each of these races. One of these will be known as the Louisville Retail Merchants' Association purse, and another as the Louisville Commercial Club purse, appropriations having been made by both of these organizations.

Running races each day for purses of $200 will be conducted, while on Wednesday, Louisville Day, automobile races, limited to Kentucky owned automobiles, will be run. The last mentioned race will follow a great automobile parade entirely around the track. The dates of the balloon races have not yet been announced.

AN IGORROTE VILLAGE

One of the Big Attractions For Kentucky State Fair Week.

In line with its policy to put on only the greatest attractions that can be secured, the Kentucky State Fair management has closed a contract to have an Igorrote Village at the coming exhibition during the week of Sept. 16th, in Louisville, which will undoubtedly prove a great attraction. This village is now located within the White City at Chicago. Its inhabitants are a horde of barbarians who have come direct from the Philippines.

This exhibition is better in fact than the one at the World's Fair in the Philippine Reservation. All of those natives were returned to the Philippines by order of the United States government and new contracts were signed with Uncle Sam to bring over a new lot of genuine dog-eating Bontoc Igorrotes. The primitive life of these barbarians will be lived every day at the State Fair, just as it is in Bontoc. Their huts are of native material, coming from the island of Luzon. The tribe includes some of the famous head hunters of the Philippines. There are many rites and ceremonies peculiar to these people and there are constant dances and feasts. The native industries are shown in the village, which will be open to inspection all day and half the night during State Fair week at Louisville.

TRAINED WILD ANIMALS.

Mundy's Trained Wild Animal Arena, the big zoological congress that has been holding forth in the famous White City at Chicago this year, has been engaged for the Kentucky State Fair at Louisville, Sept. 16th to 21st. This is admitted to be one of the most complete trained wild animal organizations in America. There is no better collection, nor are there finer specimens of the Asiatic and African carnivora than are to be seen in this big trained wild animal show. Each and every one of them is thoroughly educated and every one is a competent actor.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Are Arranged For Every Day and Night.

AT THE KENTUCKY STATE FAIR

There Will Be Something Doing All the Time—Interesting and Instructive Features.

Are you a citizen of Kentucky, a member of any fraternal organization, a school child, a citizen of Southern Indiana, a German-American, an Irish-American, a laborer, an editor, or a militiaman? If so, you are specially provided for in the list of special nights and special days arranged in the program of the Kentucky State Fair to be held in Louisville Sept. 16 to 21. If you are not to be included in any of these classes, you will be taken care of on Everybody's Day. The State Fair management has arranged most interesting special days and special nights. These are enumerated as follows:

SPECIAL DAYS.

COL. W. W. HITE, President Louisville Board of Trade, General Chairman.
MONDAY, SEPT. 16—SCHOOL CHILDREN'S DAY.
C. B. Nordeman, Member Louisville School Board, Chairman.
TUESDAY, SEPT. 17—FRATERNAL DAY.
R. S. Brown, President Louisville Commercial Club, Chairman.
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18—LOUISVILLE DAY.
Geo. G. Fetter, Director Louisville Board of Trade, Chairman.
THURSDAY, SEPT. 19—KENTUCKY DAY.
Lew B. Brown of Harrodsburg, President Kentucky Press Association, Chairman.
FRIDAY, SEPT. 20—SOUTHERN INDIANA DAY.
Adam Heimberger, President New Albany Commercial Club, Chairman.
SATURDAY, SEPT. 21—EVERYBODY'S DAY.
Everybody, Chairman.

SPECIAL NIGHTS.

J. V. Beckmann, Manager Retail Merchants' Association, General Chairman.
MONDAY, SEPT. 16—GERMAN-AMERICAN NIGHT.
F. W. Keisker, Chairman.
TUESDAY, SEPT. 17—IRISH-AMERICAN NIGHT.
Thos. McCabe, Chairman.
WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18—LABOR NIGHT.
John Young, President Louisville Federation of Labor, Chairman.
THURSDAY, SEPT. 19—PRESS NIGHT.
Young E. Allison, Chairman.
FRIDAY, SEPT. 20—MILITARY NIGHT.
Col. W. B. Haldeman, Colonel Commanding First Kentucky Regiment, Chairman.
SATURDAY, SEPT. 21—FAREWELL NIGHT.
Smith T. Bailey, Chairman.

Of all of these, Kentucky Day is expected to be the banner one of the great State Fair week. Mr. Brown, as President of the Kentucky Press Association, has named as his associates on the Kentucky Day Committee many of the State's most prominent newspaper men. This committee will arrange several big excursions to be run into Louisville on that day.

On the night of Kentucky Day, special attention is to be given to the editors, as the name of the night indicates. Colonel Young E. Allison, to whom there is no better known editor in the state, is chairman of Press Night, and will see that members of the tripod are handled in a way that will make their visit an oasis in the desert of pencil-pushing life.

One of the most beautiful sights of the Fair will be that of ten thousand school children waving flags on the grand stand the opening day. A special rate of ten cents for admission has been made for all school children on this date.

On Fraternal Day lodges and societies of every character will have an inning. A big tent is to be provided for all organizations taking part, and here visitors may be received, welcomed and registered. Col. Brown is planning some interesting drills by uniform ranks of different organizations.

Mr. Heimberger is calling upon the commercial organizations of Southern Indiana, as well as the editors of that section, to make Southern Indiana Day one that will be a credit to that progressive section.

The German-Americans and Irish-Americans will fittingly celebrate on the two special nights named in their honor, while Wednesday evening will give to the laboring element an excellent chance to show its strength. There will be no night, however, more attractive than that given over to military organizations. It is planned to have an exhibition drill and dress parade on the track in front of the grand stand on that evening. The glare of the arc lights and the glow of the incandescent, upon bayonets, epaulets and buttons, will present a most attractive picture.

Everybody's Day is for everybody who could not come on any other day, as well as for everybody who has come on every other day. It will have an excellent finale in the evening, when Chairman Bailey has planned a gorgeous program.

The avenue, both sides of which are to be lined with amusements secured for the State Fair, has been dubbed "The Stretch." It will have the biggest and best amusement features of the year, the first under the wire.

SIX GREAT DAYS AND NIGHTS

State Fair at Louisville Will Be a Memorable Occasion.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the State Fair in Louisville for the week of Sept. 16th.

The entries made in all departments exceed the most sanguine expectations of the State Fair officers. Undoubtedly the live stock exhibits, as well as those in other departments, will be in keeping with State Fairs that are many years older than Kentucky's institution.

With seventeen exhibit departments the visitor will have enough to see for several days; indeed it is not expected that anyone could fully cover the Kentucky State Fair in one day's time.

Passing from the exhibit departments to the amusement features, it may be said without fear of contradiction that the biggest attractions of the kind that were ever secured for a State Fair have been contracted for by the State Board of Agriculture, under whose auspices it is to be held permanently in Louisville the State Fair.

The State Board has pulled itself away from the old ideas of carnival companies, etc. It has closed contracts only for the biggest amusement features. There will be about ten of these, but they will represent more genuine amusements than one hundred small carnival shows.

The fireworks exhibition at night, when the Eruption of Vesuvius is reproduced, will prove a great card.

In addition to this Captain Knabenshue will personally appear at the Fair in his new passenger-carrying airship.

There will also be balloon races and captive balloons.

If you want to see all of the State Fair this year we would advise you to come prepared to stay several days.

In a school in Ancoats a clergyman was questioning a class of boys on their religious instruction. He endeavored to emphasize the virtue of avoiding occasions of sin. "What should a man avoid," he asked, "who is in the habit of getting too much drunk?"

A bright-eyed but rather forlorn-looking lad was ready with an answer: "Please, sir, a policeman."—Manchester Guardian.

PUT IN JAIL FOR NON-RESPECT OF COURT

Magistrate Hoffman Sent to Jail For Three Hours by Judge Lincoln.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 3.—Magistrate Frank J. Hoffman was committed to jail for three hours this afternoon by County Judge Walter Lincoln on the charge of contempt of court. The action complained of was committed at the session of the Fiscal Court, which met at 2 o'clock, and is said to have been due to some trouble which exists between Hoffman and County Attorney Robert Page.

Shortly after court convened Magistrate Hoffman inquired why it was that County Attorney Page was kicking whenever the magistrate attempted to accomplish something.

"I wish some one would tell me why Page kicks at everything we are trying to do," said Hoffman.

This inquiry was called forth when Page suggested that several vouchers, which Hoffman recommended should be paid, be held up. Hoffman became insistent and Judge Lincoln demanded that Hoffman be explicit. Hoffman continued to complain and did not heed the warning of the court to desist.

"Sit down or get out of here," said Judge Lincoln, addressing the Magistrate.

"I defy anybody to put me out," Hoffman responded.

"Take him to jail and commit him for three hours for contempt of court," said Judge Lincoln, this time addressing Deputy Sheriff Walters. When the officer took hold of Hoffman the latter resisted and it appeared that there would be a scene. Walters told Hoffman that he was going to take him and told him not to resist or it would be the worse for him. Hoffman then gave in and walked out of the court room with the officer.

Once on the outside however, Hoffman again declared that he would not go to jail. He remonstrated at what he termed the outrageous action of Judge Lincoln, but Walters carried out the instructions of the court and turned his prisoner over to the jailer Hoffman was committed at 2:15 and was released at 5:15 o'clock.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives strength and health to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists. m
